Indonesia is known as the largest archipelagic country in the world. The extent of sea-owned shows many potential marine resources which can be utilized. Indonesia is a nation composed of various ethnic groups or tribes. The statement was on one side depicts the diversity of racial or ethnic groups in the archipelago. On the other hand indicates the cultural diversity of every tribes there. In addition to indicating kemultibudayaan, also reflected the heterogeneity and ethnic distribution of the vast area or tribes referred to as the survival and develop their culture.

It also means that local culture is a comprehensive view of a particular ethnicity concerning life views, attitudes, and value systems in their lives. In other words, the culture of an ethnicity is an instrument or tool in the life of its people with the values contained in their culture being a benchmark and a goal of their lives. At the same time society as a cultural actor lacks a sense of self-responsibility as a tradition heir (Mattulada, 1985:12).

In general, we can understand that local wisdom is knowledge developed by the ancestors in observing the environment around them, making that knowledge part of the culture and introducing and continuing it from generation to generation. Some forms of traditional knowledge emerge through stories, legends, songs, rituals, and also rules or local laws (Ridwan, 2007: 3).

The Indonesian nation is also rich in ethnic and cultural diversity consisting of various ethnic or ethnic groups. Every ethnic group has a different culture with its own peculiarities. That means that local culture is a comprehensive view of a particular ethnicity concerning life views, attitudes, and value systems in their lives. In other words, the culture of an ethnicity is an instrument or tool in the life of its people with the values contained in their culture being a benchmark and a goal of their lives. On the same side, society as a cultural actor lacks a sense of self-responsibility as a tradition heir. (Mattulada, 1985:12).

Van Zoes (1992), says signs in language examine the problems of culture, context, and ideology that play an important role in people's lives. The sign or symbol refers to something, and that reference can be both inside and outside the text.

Culture is a sub system that has coherence. Symbolic forms in the form of words, objects, behavior, myths, literature, paintings, songs, music, beliefs that are closely related to the concepts of the system of knowledge, are also inseparable from the social system, social organizations, and all social behavior. (Koentjaraningrat, 2004).
The purpose of this study is to describe the form of the Jeknek Sappara ritual (safar bath) in Balangloe Village, Taroang District, Jeneponto Regency.

Data were collected via observation, interview, recording, and note taking. The recording technique was used to record a number of forms and symbols found in the ritual Akjeknek-JeknekSappara". The recording was also carried out to record additional information from the ritual organizers and the local community. Interviews, both formally and informally, strengthened what has been gained from direct observation.

Data analysis

The collected data were analysed based on existing problems. The process of data analysis began by examining all available data from various sources and arranging them in units. The units were then categorized in the next step. These categories were carried out while making data coding and cards. The final stage of... data analysis was to hold a data validity check. After completing this stage, data were interpreted based on temporary results.

RESULTS

The results showed that there were several forms and meanings of the Jeknek Sappara ritual (safar bath), namely assemma, a’lili, patoeng, a’rurung kalompoang, dengkapada, ahliena, parabbana, pagambusu, pa pui’-pui’, paolle, pabbatte, akraga, akjeknek-jeknek, and manyukkang. Shape and Meaning of the Jeknek Sappara Ritual (Mandi Safar).

The following explains in details some ritual forms in the implementation of the jeknek sappara event:

Appasempra

One of the cultural ritual items that is performed at each jeknek sappara event is the appasempra, which is held to complain the strength of the local sons and daughters with mutual tussling between participants. This activity can be followed by men with a certain age level, possibly young people aged 18 years and over. Determination of pairs of participants in an appasempra match is based on the age of each participant. Every couple must have the same age to have a relatively balanced force occurs.

A’lili’

A’lili’ is a ritual held by traditional leaders called tabbika by wrapping threads on wooden trunks which have been plugged into the ground by twelve sticks. The log used is special wood called baranak wood by the local community. This log was planted in the area of the event precisely on the coast of Balangloe Tarowang Village which was then twisted twelve times also with the thread provided by the tabbika.

Patoeng

Patoeng is one of the cultural agendas that attracts public attention when the event takes place. The activity which was held precisely on the peak day of the ejeknek sappara celebration, which was on the 14th Safar became an interesting spectacle because those who didattoeng (swinging) were village girls who were young and not yet married. Indirectly, this opportunity was made by the youth who took part in the event to see the girls because there is a possibility that some of them want to propose to one of the several girls who attend the attoengritual.

A’rurung Kalomboang

A’rurung Kalomboang is one of the most important items in the event, ne-je’ne ‘sappara. In terms of language, a’rurung kalomboang means a great march which is a ritual carried out in the form of a parade around the event area and ends in a circle of baranak wooden sticks which are plugged into the ceremony area on the coast. The parade was attended by local village youth. Those who were chosen as participants could be young people from the descendants of the Tarowang Kingdom.

Dengkapada

Dengkapada is a type of dance that is staged at the je'ne 'je'ne' sappara ceremony. This dance can be performed by eleven dancers using local custom clothing. Dancers are women who can consist of young girls who live in a local village. Dance in dengka is the form of a dance form that demonstrates a group of women who pound rice in an elongated vessel called the pakdengkang which is equipped with a pounder which is each held by the dancer.

Pakarena

Pakarena is displayed at the top of the je'ne-je’ne' sappara ceremony. This dance can be done by a group of female dancers accompanied by a regional musical instrument called pui’-pui’, which is a musical instrument that is played by being blown and will produce a melodious sound when played by those who already have the skills and abilities in that matter. In addition, this dance is also accompanied by the drumming of musicians called paganrang.

Parabbana

Parabbana is a traditional music game that is a kind of drum or tambourine which is beaten by a music player called paganrang. Paganrang consists of several people, who can number three to five men.

Pagambusu

Pagambusu is the local language for the term guitar player. This gambusu music game can be done by men and in the je’je’-je’ne sappara event, pagambusu is presented at the commemoration of the highlight of the event. Gambusu musical instruments are also used to accompany various performances such as traditional singing during the event.

Pa pui’-Pui’

Pa pui’ is the name for those who play a wind instrument called pui’-pui’ by local people. The number of players of this instrument are quite large, ranging from 12 people. This musical instrument game was presented at the commemoration of the je'ne'-je’ne 'sappara ceremony.

Paolle

Paolle is the term to refer to an art performance at the top of the traditional je'ne'-je’ne 'sappara event in the form of traditional singing with local language lyrics sung by women up to seven people and accompanied by a man who acts as drummer organrang in local language. Besides Paganrang, Paolle is also accompanied by Pa Pui’pui’.

A’pabbatte

A’pabbatte is a local term for the Makassar tribal community which means to complain. The binary which is pitted in the jeknek 'sappara program is chicken or termed a'pabbattejangang.

Akraga

Akraga is a type of sports art that can be played by men. Nowadays Akraga is better known as takraw by the general public, namely sports that are played by two teams fighting each other. One team consists of three players, where in this game used balls made of rattan.

Akjeknek-jeknek

Similar to the name of the traditional ceremony held in the village of Balangloe Tarowang, the language is interpreted by bathing or sometimes referred to as anriosio by the local community. This bath-bathing ritual was carried out on the beach of Baltar Village at the height of the traditional ceremony and was attended by the children. This ritual symbolizes the excitement felt by the maritime community because they are given the ability to hold a jeknek 'sappara event.
Ammanyukang Kanrangan

Ammanyukang kanrangang means to wash away offerings. This ritual is carried out by washing away the offerings prepared by the community by traditional leaders called tabbika in the sea after being spelled out by the tabbi. Various typical foods are collected in one container and put into a small raft to be washed into the sea. The offerings included tedong-tedong, ketupat, chicken, and other special foods that had become the local people's habits.

The Meaning of Cultural Rituals Jeknek Sappara

Appasempa

This appasempa was born as a form of commemoration of the victory of the Tarowang Kingdom barani against tobarani from the Majapahit Kingdom. At that time, the two sides were pitted to determine who the kingdom deserved to be in power. To commemorate that victory, the appasempa event which incidentally was an integral part of the Jeknek Sappara event which was attended by brave men today.

Appasempa is a form of embodiment of strength that is owned by the next generation in the local area. Appasempa is a ritual form that has the meaning of pitting strength and courage among the Tarowang youth. So, what needs to be emphasized in this case is that the apparatus is one of the traditional performances and part of the Jeknek Sappara ceremony which departs from the brave battle of the kingdom in the past. Therefore, to commemorate the historical moment because of the victory achieved by the Tarowang Kingdom, it was realized in the form of the implementation of the activity which was full of cultural meaning and values for the local community. Sociologically an implicit meaning can be found behind the implementation of these activities. One thing that needs to be analyzed more deeply in terms of sociology is the involvement of men as participants in the activity. This raises a question of why only men are involved in organizing the event.

A'lili'

The use of the twelve in the A'lili' ritual is certainly not something that goes on as it is, but implied a very sacred meaning for the community. This is rooted in local culture which has a distinctive grip on the cultural heritage and customs that it adheres to, known as panggadakkang. The panggadakkang which is held in high esteem and becomes a legacy that has been ingrained in the local community is known as adat dua twelve, or in the local language is called the term ‘sampuloanrua. Realizing that human actions are not removed from the meaning, it is necessary to emphasize once again that the repetition of up to twelve times each ritual is carried out based on the panggadakkang adopted by the Balangloe Tarowang Village community as a maritime community.

Baranak logs amounting to twelve sticks and are stuck on the ground in the event area and made like a circle likened to a human. While a series of seven strands wrapped around the circle of logs is likened to a unifying tool that unites the local community as a whole unit and groups of people who always uphold the values of solidarity between them. So, it can be concluded that the ritual of ‘Alili’ has the meaning of unity and brotherhood among the people of Balangloe Tarowang.

At a glance, it can be studied sociologically that the implementation of a’lili’ activities in the jeknek sappara event gives meaning as a unifying tool for the community. It can be seen from the symbol given in the form of the use of logs that are plugged in and wrapped around using threads. The ritual illustrates the value of social integration that is upheld by the community. Through the implementation of these rituals the community indirectly gets a message about the importance of maintaining the values of integration between them as a social system. This raises a question of why only the men are involved in organizing the event.

Patoeng

Patoeng rituals have the meaning of introducing unmarried girls, especially girls descending from the Tarowang Kingdom to the general public. The implicit meaning of the attoeng ritual for the community, especially for young people and girls in the local village, that indirectly from the ritual there is a distinct benefit that they get which is possible for them to get a life partner. This indicates that someone will be compelled to do and maintain a social action when it will bring its own value.
A'furungKalompoang

A'furung Kalompoang is not just a parade, but there is meaning to be conveyed so that this activity is held. The activity was intended to introduce to the wider community that the Tarowang Kingdom had experienced glory in the past. This is evidenced by the royal relics that are still maintained today and enshrined in one area called the Kalompoang (power) by the people located in the Tarowang area.

The purpose of the implementation of a'furungkalompoanga ctivity is to convey to the general public that Tarowang in the past was an area that used the royal system and had become a kingdom that triumphed and was able to conquer the Majapahit Kingdom which had intended to control the region. So through the implementation of these activities, the goal to convey the message can be achieved.

Dengkapada

As an inseparable part of the commemoration of the Jekne'-jekne 'Sappara event, of course this activity has its own meaning. The meaning of the implementation at each ceremony of the Jekne'-jekne 'Sappara ceremony is to convey the implied message to the community that the area they are currently occupying, especially in Balangloe Tarowang Village is a village that once carved history as a fertile area of potential and natural resources. This can be seen from the results of land farming managed by the community in the form of rice or other commodities.

Pakarena

Pakarena gives its own meaning to the community. According to the informant, this dance is a means for the community to express happiness and pleasure in carrying out the Jekne'ekek 'Sappara event as a deserving ancestral heritage to be maintained and regenerated for the nation's pioneers in the future as a provision of wealth the culture that we have.

Paolle

If we analyze it in terms of the implementation function of Paolle, this activity has a big contribution to the culture of the community. Paolle has its own meaning for the local community. Paolle conveyed cultural messages through the lyrics of the song sung. It can be said indirectly that this activity is part of cultural communication to pass on cultural values to the community.

Paolle was held with the intention of being a venue for the community to welcome the commemoration of the peak commemoration of the Jekne'-jekne’ Sappara event as well as an expression of the people's joy.

A’pabbatte

If we observe from the perspective of social theories, as a social act the ritual of a’pabattejangang is not a ritual that is held merely as a formality but also implied the meaning contained in the event. In the perspective of symbolic interactionism theory that an interaction carried out by humans has meaning and more as a product of symbolic interaction.

The meaning contained in the implementation of the a'pabatte or a'pabbitte during a traditional ceremony in the village of Balangloe Tarowang, among others, was a form of embodiment of the struggle that had been experienced by the royal barani in ancient times so that the battle was now manifested in another form, namely by pitting chicken as proof of concern and public attention to safeguard the historical heritage of the Tarowang community. In addition, this ritual is also a form of joy for the Balangloe Tarowang Village community in welcoming the traditional Jekne'-jekne’ Sappara party.

Akraga

As stated earlier that this akraga activity is attended by various teams coming from the local areas or from outside the Tarowang Subdistrict area implies the meaning of social solidarity that tries to be realized in the implementation of these activities. This is because this activity is able to bring together many people who come in a variety of different backgrounds. Therefore, this activity is also a very important thing to maintain social integration among the people. This ritual is also a form of joy for Balangloe Tarowang Village community in welcoming the traditional Jekne'-jekne’ Sappara party.

This ritual symbolizes the excitement felt by the maritime community because they are given the ability to hold a jeknek 'sappara event. As an expression of the joy of the community, these baths are also termed a’lagasomboang, because the children who bathe on the beach feel excited until they express it by playing in the water and holding each other or in a local language called assisombo.

Ammanyukang Kanrangan

The meaning of this ritual is to commemorate the departure of the tabbi in ancient times when he left the territory of the Kingdom of Tarowang and migrated to the Sumbawa area. Tabbika’s departure at that time was due to his feeling of reluctance and shame towards the King. The King then rebuked Tabbika because he had a very nice house.

CONCLUSION

This study concluded that the form of the jeknek sappara ritual (safar bath) consists of several forms, namely assempa, a’lili, patoeng, a ‘Rurung Kalomboang, dengkapada, Ahliena, parabana, pagambusu, pa pui’-pui’, paolle, pabatte, akraga, akjeknek-jeknek, and manyukkang.
